Each person concerned can defeat his rights (data subject rights) vis-à-vis the responsible, using E-Mail, Mail or a provided Form. Even telephone inquiries are possible. However, telephone inquiries are only accepted, but not answered by telephone. The responsible selects the medium (Mail, E-Mail, or other media) and sends the answer to the request to the person concerned. Answers to requests of data subject rights are free of charge. Excessive exercises of the rights can result in a fee. Answers will be send within the legal deadline of one month. In exceptional cases, the timeframe for answers can be prolonged (i.e., high number of requests or high complexity of the request). The extension of the timeframe must be justified.

For a better overview, the data subject rights are listed briefly below:

- |                                    |   |
|------------------------------------|---|
| - Right to erasure          | - Right to restriction of processing                   |
| - Right to object           | - Right to lodge a complaint @ a supervisory authority |

The person concerned must authenticate him-/herself to the responsible in order to ensure that he/she is legitimated to exercise the data subject rights.

In the state of Bremen (Germany), the supervisory authority in charge of data protection complaints is the Office for Data Protection and Freedom of Information (contact data):
